Introducing a new website with information for foreign construction companies

Boverket has been commissioned by the government to build and manage a website where foreign developers and construction companies can easily find information on which regulations are applicable for those who intend to run a business in Sweden in order to let build or to build housing.

Digital revolution in baby steps!

What to expect

- The aim of the website is to lower the thresholds for establishing business in Sweden
- The website shall describe to the foreign developers how to do and how the Swedish construction and real estate market works
- The website will provide a guide to finding the necessary information. This will be done through links and suggested search words etc
- The website will not provide a tendering tool
- Terms of different forms of state aid, a selection of them will be translated

13 June 2018

- Visualisation and description of the Swedish construction and housing markets at an overall level, as well as the steps to be taken by the developer and by the contractor
- Information on the planning and building process, most of this is already available
- A selection of legislative material, e.g. the Planning and Building Act, the Construction Regulations and the Design Regulations
- Limited information on private certifications etc.

13 June 2018

- Navigational help to find primarily laws and regulations, but also some industry agreements and standards
- Links to information on other websites e.g.
 - www.verksamt.se/eugo which holds everything around starting or running a business
(http://ec.europa.eu/internal_market/eu-go/)
 - Regulations on work environment
 - Tendering specifications
- Film interviews with foreign construction companies and developers already established in Sweden

Any specific issues to take on board?

- A questionnaire has been sent to a few foreign companies that are already represented in Sweden (from Poland, Estonia, the Netherlands)
- The website will not be static, but improved over time.
 - Did we miss something?
- Is there a language barrier? Does English work?

Thank you!
